ASSOCIATE or FULL PROFESSOR
DEPARTMENT OF CLINICAL AND HEALTH PSYCHOLOGY

The Department of Clinical and Health Psychology invites applications for a tenured or tenure-track position at the Associate or Full Professor rank. The position is part of the University of Florida’s pre-eminence initiative and involves interdisciplinary collaborations among the College of Public Health and Health Professions, the College of Education, the Institute for Child Health Policy (ICHP) and the Center for Excellence in Early Childhood Studies (CEECS). The focus of the interdisciplinary collaboration is Optimizing Early Childhood Development and Experience for Young Children.

For this position with the College of Public Health and Health Professions, the ideal candidate is expected to be the leader of a nationally or internationally recognized, externally-funded research program in an area of specialization related to child development, health, mental health or psychosocial functioning in early childhood. The successful candidate would be comfortable within a Scientist-Practitioner or Research Scientist culture and have active interest and skills in program development and collaborative research in a dynamic environment that includes both Health Professions and Public Health disciplines. Duties include a negotiable combination of research, research mentoring, teaching and clinical service delivery. A record of exceptional mentoring and scientific and scholarly achievements is essential. This is a full-time (1.0 FTE), 12-month position, with an open start date. This position requires an individual to have excellent communication skills. Interested applicants should have completed APA-Accredited graduate and clinical internship programs, have a minimum of two years of post-doctoral training or two years of post-doctoral professional experience. Applicants must have a doctoral degree in Clinical, School or Counseling Psychology and be licensed or license-eligible in the State of Florida.

The Department of Clinical and Health Psychology (http://chp.phhp.ufl.edu/) is a unique, freestanding academic clinical psychology program with 25 core faculty, over 80 doctoral students, and two APA accredited programs: a doctoral program in clinical psychology and a clinical internship in professional psychology. The Department has a 50-year history of providing APA-accredited doctoral and internship training in clinical psychology and advanced specialty-specific training in four content areas: Child/Pediatric Psychology; Health Psychology; Neuropsychology, Neurorehabilitation and Clinical Neuroscience; and Cognitive Aging and Memory. The doctoral program has been ranked in the 93rd percentile by the National Research Council’s data-based ranking system.

UF is a comprehensive Research I institution that includes a wide range of academic departments and programs (www.ufl.edu). The College of Public Health and Health Professions (www.phhp.ufl.edu) is part of the University’s Health Science Center. The UF Health Science Center (https://ufhealth.org/about-us) is the country’s only academic health center with six health-related colleges located on a single, contiguous campus. They include the colleges of Dentistry, Medicine, Nursing, Pharmacy, Public Health and Health Professions, and Veterinary Medicine. The Health Science Center generates more than half of UF’s total research awards. The UF Health Science Center is closely affiliated with UF Health, part of the University of Florida Health System. Within the healthcare system are an 850 bed teaching hospital, an 81-bed psychiatric hospital, a 40 bed outpatient rehabilitation facility, and numerous outpatient and specialty clinics including a Psychology Clinic run by the Department of Clinical and Health Psychology.
