Lecturer

The Department of Epidemiology (https://epidemiology.phhp.ufl.edu) is recruiting a non-tenure track faculty member at the Lecturer level. The successful candidate will be expected to teach courses that support our undergraduate and graduate public health programs and serve as a faculty advisor in the Bachelor of Public Health program. The teaching assignment is expected to be multiple sections of two (2) courses per semester.

The Department of Epidemiology is situated jointly within the College of Public Health and Health Professions and the College of Medicine, demonstrating a model of multidisciplinary research and focus. Our current faculty are leaders in psychiatric, aging, cardiovascular, infectious disease, environmental, genetic and chronic disease epidemiology. In addition to our PhD program, we have a M.S. in epidemiology and an epidemiology concentration in the MPH program.

Qualifications

- Master’s degree in a public health, epidemiology or related field
- Demonstrated excellence in teaching and mentoring

The University of Florida is a comprehensive research-extensive university that includes a full range of academic departments and programs (www.ufl.edu). The College of Public Health and Health Professions (www.phhp.ufl.edu) is part of the University’s Health Science Center. The UF Health Science Center (https://ufhealth.org/about-us) is the country’s only academic health center with six health-related colleges located on a single, contiguous campus. They include the colleges of Dentistry, Medicine, Nursing, Pharmacy, Public Health and Health Professions, and Veterinary Medicine. The Health Science Center generates more than half of UF’s total research awards.

The University of Florida is an equal opportunity institution dedicated to building a broadly diverse and inclusive faculty and staff. Hiring is contingent upon eligibility to work in the U.S. Searches are conducted in accordance with Florida’s Sunshine Law.
