This position will involve classroom teaching of upper-division, undergraduate students in speech, language, and hearing sciences courses, and the creation of a new Honors course on communication disorders.

Qualifications
Minimum requirement for the Lecturer is Master's degree.
Minimum requirement for the Clinical Assistant Professor is a PhD.

Work Setting & Gainesville Community
This is an exciting time to come join our team at one of the nation’s top university teaching hospitals and health care facilities located in beautiful North Central Florida. SLHS is housed within the College of Public Health and Health Professions and is well integrated within the Health Science Center, providing a wealth of opportunities for scholarly collaborations. The speech language pathology and audiology programs are accredited by the CAA through 2024. The UF Health Science Center is one of the largest in the nation, with six separate colleges.

The University of Florida is a comprehensive doctoral research-extensive university that includes a full range of academic departments and programs (www.ufl.edu). It has a long history of established programs in international education, research and service and is one of only 17 public, land-grant universities that belong to the Association of American Universities. UF is the state’s oldest and most comprehensive university and is among the nation’s most academically diverse public higher education institutions. It regularly has more than $700 million in research dollars.

The city of Gainesville is affordable and family friendly, offering a variety of opportunities for entertainment and outdoor activities.
