Assistant/Associate/Full Professor
Department of Clinical and Health Psychology

The Department of Clinical and Health Psychology within the College of Public Health and Health Professions invites applications for a tenure-track position at the Assistant, Associate, or Full Professor rank in the area of clinical health psychology with an emphasis in any number of health psychology-related content areas including, but not limited to: behavioral sleep medicine, cardiovascular health, behavioral cancer control/prevention, health disparities, transplant psychology, etc. Applicants must have a doctoral degree in Clinical or Counseling Psychology, or a related field. The ideal candidate for this position is expected to: (a) display a strong career record of scientific and scholarly achievements relative to other professionals at their current professional rank; (b) have active interest and skills in building a collaborative research program within a dynamic, interprofessional, academic health center environment; and (c) possess competency and willingness to engage in the provision of research mentorship and education within a Scientist-Practitioner graduate training program emphasizing evidence-based practice. Candidates with Clinical or Counseling Psychology degrees will also be expected to be licensed or license-eligible in the state of Florida and provide clinical service, mentorship, and education within the UF Health Science Center, including our outpatient UF Psychology Clinic. Preference will be given to ABPP certified or board eligible candidates. The Candidate will work closely with colleagues within the department, physicians, and other health care providers in a dynamic healthcare environment. This is a full-time (1.0 FTE), 12-month position, with an open start date but ideally no later than July 1, 2019.

The Department of Clinical and Health Psychology (http://chp.phhp.ufl.edu) is a unique, freestanding academic clinical psychology program with 31 core faculty, over 80 doctoral students, and two APA accredited programs: a doctoral program in clinical psychology and a clinical internship in professional psychology. We also have a post-doctoral fellowship that is soon to apply for APA accreditation which includes 2 Health Psychology slots. The Department has a 50-year history of providing APA-accredited doctoral and internship training in clinical psychology and advanced specialty-specific training in four content areas: Child/Pediatric Psychology; Health Psychology; Neuropsychology, Neurorehabilitation and Clinical Neuroscience; and Cognitive Aging and Memory. The doctoral program has been ranked in the 93rd percentile by the National Research Council’s data-based ranking system.

UF is ranked as a top ten U.S. public university and is a comprehensive Research I institution that includes a wide range of academic departments and programs (www.ufl.edu). The College of Public Health and Health Professions (www.phhp.ufl.edu) is part of the University’s Health Science Center. The UF Health Science Center (https://ufhealth.org/about-us) is the country’s only academic health center with six health-related colleges located on a single, contiguous campus. They include the colleges of Dentistry, Medicine, Nursing, Pharmacy, Public Health and Health Professions, and Veterinary Medicine. The Health Science Center generates more than half of UF’s total research awards. The UF Health Science Center is closely affiliated with UF Health, part of the University of Florida Health System. Within the healthcare system are an 850 bed teaching hospital, an 81-bed psychiatric hospital, a 40 bed outpatient rehabilitation facility, and numerous outpatient and specialty clinics including a Psychology Clinic run by the Department of Clinical and Health Psychology.
