Clinical Assistant Professor
Department of Health Services Research, Management and Policy

Applications are being sought for a full-time, non-tenure track faculty position in the Department of Health Services Research, Management and Policy. Only applicants at the rank of Clinical Assistant Professor will be considered. This is a full-time (1.00 FTE), 12-month position, with an open start date.

Position: Duties will be primarily teaching and service to the department. The successful candidate will have a track record of teaching and mentoring students. The department has a particular need for faculty who can teach multiple classes in a Bachelor of Public Health Program and a Bachelor of Health Science Program.

Health Services Research, Management and Policy is one of eight departments in the College of Public Health and Health Professions. The department offers a Master of Health Administration (MHA) degree program, a PhD in Health Services Research, and the Public Health Management and Policy concentration within the college’s Master of Public Health program. More information on the department can be found at http://hsrmp.phhp.ufl.edu/.

The University of Florida is a comprehensive doctoral research-extensive university that includes a full range of academic departments and programs (www.ufl.edu). It has a long history of established programs in international education, research and service. The University of Florida is one of only 17 public, land-grant universities that belong to the Association of American Universities. The College of Public Health and Health Professions at the University of Florida is one among 62 schools and colleges in the U.S. that have achieved accreditation as a school of public health from the Council on Education for Public Health. Unique among its peers, the college encompasses both public health and the health professions, thereby providing a fertile environment for the integration of population-based problem solving and individual patient care. These opportunities for collaboration in education, research and service further the college’s mission to preserve, promote and improve the health and well-being of populations, communities and individuals.

Minimum Requirements: Applicants must have a doctorate in health services research or a relevant, related discipline.
